

UN Photo/Yutaka Nagata/United Nations Emergency Force observation post, Sinai 1975

The Israel-Palestine Conflict

Searching for New Solutions; the Role of the UN, Civil Society and Denmark

A resolution to the conflict between Israel-Palestine seems, yet again, very remote. 2015 saw an upsurge in violence on both sides, limiting the possibilities for a positive transformation of the conflict. In a seemingly frozen conflict, searching for new ways for the parties to engage with each other is crucial for the prospects of the peace process.

The conference is divided into three themes, each investigating how specific actors can play a part in transforming the conflict, and thus bring a solution nearer. Emphasis will be put on UN, civil society organisations and the role of the Danish government.

The conference brings together researchers, politicians, civil society organisations, journalists and experts for an in-depth discussion of the conflict – including Holger K. Nielsen, Laila Naraghi, Jonatan Soussa Møller, Peter Viggo Jakobsen, Sarah Borger, Jakob Erle, Leila Stockmarr, Poya Pakzad and Kirsten Larsen.

Conference language is English. Coffee/tea and a sandwich will be served during the conference. Participation fee is DKK 45,-

Registration (mandatory) no later than January 22nd: <https://fnforbundet.nemtilmeld.dk/49>

Time & place:

Thursday 28th January 2016

16.00-20.00

Landstingssalen, Christiansborg

